

The Big Reveal

If you follow Jewhungry on Facebook or Twitter (and hopefully you do!), you might have heard that the ol' blog is undergoing some maintenance. I found an amazing designer on Etsy and my tech-savvy mom transferred all my files from this blog to the upcoming blog and insert additional nerd tech-talk here, and well, the long of the short of it is that I am about a week away from unveiling the new Jewhungry blog. In the meantime, I just wanted to share my latest Kveller.com post. Switching gears to my other passion, school social work, I wrote an open letter to parents imploring them to talk to their kids about sex. Hmm . . . does that sound weird? I hope not. Anywho, click here for the article. Have a wonderful Sukkot and an excellent rest of your week. As always, thank you for reading.

Coming Up: I play with spelt (woot woot)!

Maybe asparagus and cauliflower join the party.